Modern Management: Effective Strategies for Leadership

With the culture of Law Enforcement ever evolving it is imperative that leaders learn to recognize when their skill set must grow with the environment. This one-day course is built upon the universal skill of connection. Departing from traditional management courses, the focus is on the employee and not the task. The attendee will be able to better recognize how to grow the employee based on the employee needs while still meeting the agency objectives. This course is a must for any supervisor looking to improve relations with employees and build a common foundation of success. The course was not designed for just new supervisors, but rather any supervisor dealing with current issues in the workplace.
