TACTICAL SYSTEMS

21st Century Use of Force Investigations

After a re-examination of the Constitutional standards, state standards and civil rights laws, the training, lecture and content of this course will focus on managing confrontations, interpretations of video based evidence events, and the writing and investigation of the use of force incidents.

This course is great for investigators, patrol officers, and anyone looking to improve and interpret their understanding of investigations involving use of force. Attendees will be provided with incidents that have occurred across the United States to include the most recently settled case, filed cases, media cases, and seminal cases.

Attendees will be provided with examples on how to communicate with supervisors, and managers on how to handle use of force incidents to ensure that incident is completely investigated, document, and reviewed to protect those involved as well as the agency.
